OFFICE OF THE CHANCELLOR

Dear Graduates:

This Year Book will over the years rekindle for you many memories of your days as students at the University of Massachusetts at Boston. You will look back on your classroom, library, laboratory, and extra-curricular activities with nostalgia, pride, and, I am sure, appreciation for what you experienced here.

Most of the Class of 1977 began their studies at the Park Square campus; others were part of the first contingent who came to the Harbor Campus on a clear, bright sunlit day in January of 1974.

I am sure you realize that Commencement is a beginning in the life-long search for educational opportunities, and I do hope that over the years you will be coming back to UMass/Boston to let us share with you, and you with us, the everchanging insights into the complexities of the society in which we live.

I wish you the very best in all of your endeavors. It has been my rich and rewarding experience to have been associated with the men and women of the Class of 1977.

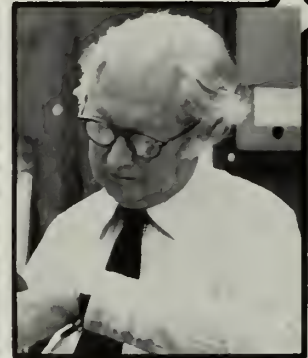

Sincerely,

Carlo L. Golino
Chancellor

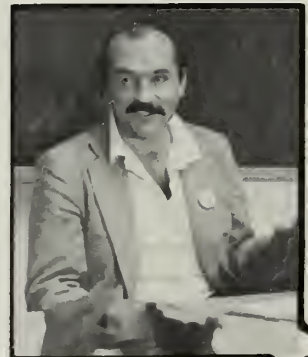

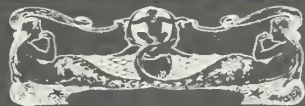

Located at Columbia Point and serving an urban student population with diverse needs, the University of Massachusetts new Harbor Campus is an important addition to the Massachusetts State University System.

Founded in 1964, the Boston Campus of the University of Massachusetts was originally located at Park Square. As a result the City of Boston, with its living historical tradition and active cultural and intellectual communities served as campus for this newly established liberal arts institution. From the start, the school's enrollment grew steadily, providing low cost, high quality education, well suited and readily available to an urban population.

A commuter school, whose student body includes many veterans and reentering students, the University of Massachusetts Harbor and Midtown Campuses offer a career oriented curriculum. Many of the students attending U. Mass are employed and the courses of study available allow them to follow a curriculum related to their career goals, while maintaining high academic standards. In providing for the needs of this specialized student body, the UMB successfully fills a vacuum in the academic community of Greater Boston and Eastern Massachusetts.

Activities made available to the Student at U. Mass Boston are predicated on two ideas. The first is the concept that the University has a responsibility to add to and be a part of its surrounding community. As a result, a community action program exists at the University and all students are encouraged to participate. The program helps students develop a sense of community consciousness, while allowing for some practical experience in the field of human services. The community benefits through increased employment among its members and greater accessibility to informational services.

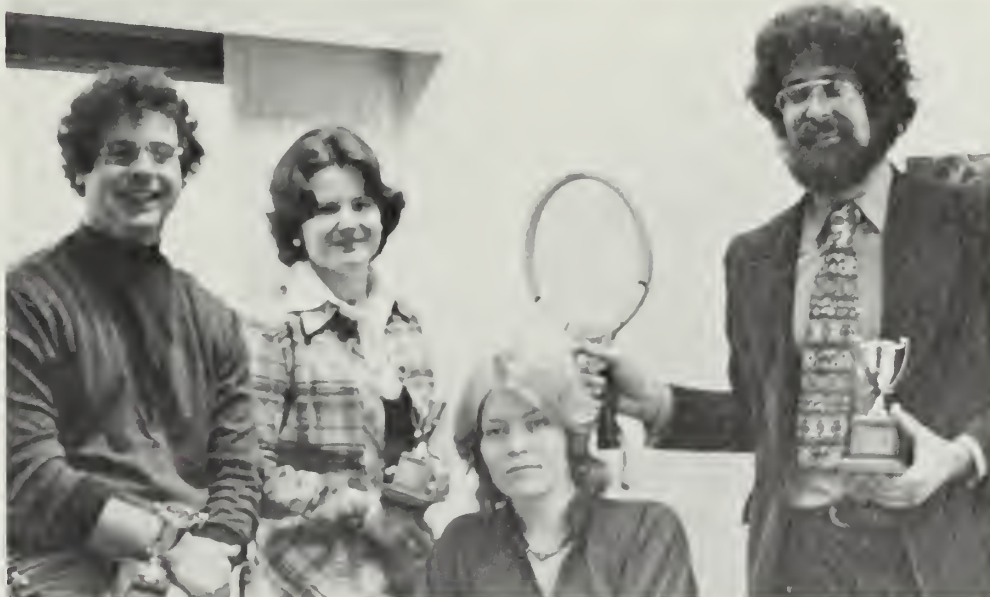

The types of activities offered are also greatly influenced by the fact that UMB is a commuter school. As such, students are often on campus for a limited period of time. Many students come only for their classes and then depart. It is necessary, therefore, to provide a common forum for discussion and expression of interest. A wide variety of clubs and organizations exist at UMB, ranging from the African American Society to the Gay People's Group to a Peer Support Group designed specifically to facilitate and support student needs.

Students are also encouraged to actively participate in University governance. Students may serve on the University Assembly or on the college governance bodies, or any of their committees. There are also numerous sports activities and games in which to become involved.

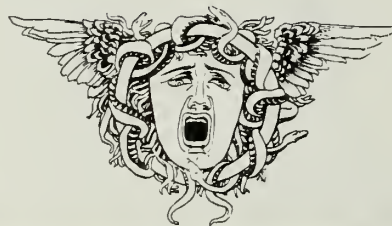

Often, college was a lonely place. New routines, new surroundings, new people making new demands on your time. The adjustment was not an easy one. You wanted to meet people and make new friends, because people are an education. It's not the one you pay for, but it is the one that counts.

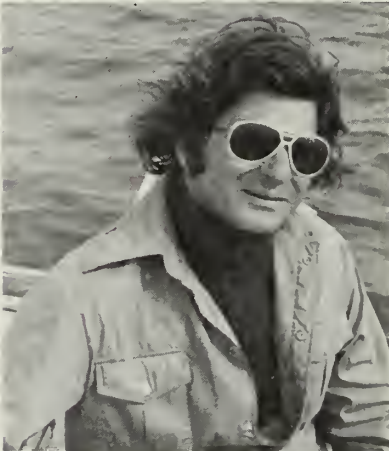

The surprise came when you found out that almost everyone else was in the same position that you were. As you made new friends, U Mass became all that you had hoped it would be. Now as your four years come to an end, you share the knowledge with all your friends that these have been the best years of your lives.
